

Out of concern with the rapidly developing news surrounding the COVID-19 coronavirus, Pritchard & Abbott, Inc., is dedicated to the safety of our employees as well as the numerous individuals employed by the entities we serve. This concern also applies to the countless number of taxpayers we interact with. Our goal is to successfully face these current health related challenges while continuing to be the leading provider of professional property tax appraisal and information technology services.

With P&A maintaining six (6) separate office locations across Texas, and with our customer base extending into other states as well, different regional conditions can present unique challenges due to the severity of the virus outbreak and corresponding response in any single area. Our many office locations provide an advantage that allows us to pool resources and shift services when necessary. We are constantly monitoring all federal, state, and local directives or mandates to remain apprised of all new developments. We have provided resources to our employees to stay informed as our management team is working together with regular meetings to deal with the most current concerns as well as planning for future developments including any possible travel restrictions.

We will continue to maintain a high level of communication with those we serve while monitoring any news or directives from all governmental bodies. Our focus, dedication, and support are unwavering as we find solutions to the issues we face in these unique times. We hope and pray that you and your loved ones remain safe and healthy.
